Four Area Officers To Attend Seminar

Four Army Reserve officers of the Washington area will attend the National Strategy Seminar at the National War College, Ft. Leslie J. McNair, July 12-23.

The officers are: Brig. Gen. James T. Roberts, commanding general, 310th Logistical Command, Alexandria; president of the Continental Warehouse and Storage Co., who lives at 3511 S. Stafford St., Arlington; Col. Robert Amory Jr., deputy director of intelligence, Central Intelligence Agency, of 4833 Dexter Ter., N.W., Washington; Col. Willard Webb, commanding officer, 306 Armor Group, Arlington; a division chief at the Library of Congress, of Clifton, Va.; and Maj. Harlan F. Hagen, congressman from California's 14th District, of 8 N. Garfield, Arlington.

These men are among the more than 200 specially selected officers of the armed forces reserves attending the course.
